

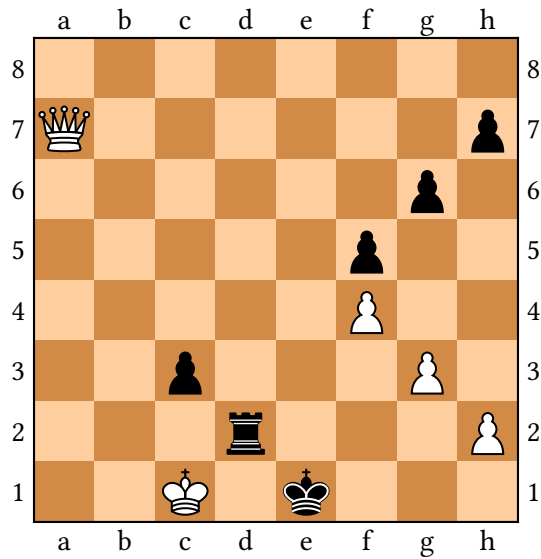

Figure 1: This is the last position of a game by the two former world champions Garry Kasparov and Veselin Topalov. Black resigns in this completely lost position. This is obvious to a grandmaster, in our case however, it will lead to an underrepresentation of checkmates, and will make it difficult for a model to convert completely wining positions.